Washington, DC – A group of Armenian-American activists who are walking 3,000 miles cross-country to raise awareness of the Armenian Genocide and other crimes against humanity, will conclude their march this week in Washington, DC.

The Journey for Humanity walk began four months ago in Los Angeles, CA with the support of the Armenian Assembly of America. Since then, the marchers have crossed a dozen states and held rallies in several major cities to promote the mission of the Journey, honor the victims and survivors of all genocidal acts and advance the cause of genocide prevention.

In Washington, the Armenian Student Network of George Washington University and others will host a discussion on genocide in today's world featuring the Journey for Humanity team and Sam Bell and Mark Hanis of the Genocide Intervention Network. The event will be held on Sunday, November 5 at 3:00 pm at the Marvin Center, Continental Ballroom at George Washington University. Representatives the Save Darfur coalition, the American Islamic Congress, Citizens for Global Solutions and the Genocide Intervention Network will also be on hand. All are welcome.
